

Hinckley Allen's Response to COVID-19

March 14, 2020

Hinckley Allen recognizes the increasing disruptions and anxiety caused by the COVID-19 virus as it continues to spread in the U.S. and across the globe. The Firm is committed to ensuring the safety and well-being of our people, clients, families, and the communities in which we live and work. In response to the COVID-19 situation, we are following best practices recommended by local and federal authorities to minimize the risk of exposure.

We are committed to continue to represent you with the same responsiveness, expertise, and experience you expect and deserve. All our offices remain open. However, should the need arise to physically close or limit access to one or more of our offices, our attorneys and staff are fully equipped to work remotely and securely to provide seamless service to our clients.

Hinckley Allen will remain fully available to you. Our attorneys are helping many of our clients address the impact on their businesses caused by this virus in a number of areas and are always accessible to answer your questions as you navigate these issues.

Please do not hesitate to contact your Hinckley Allen attorney to address any questions or concerns. We wish health and safety to you and your families.
